

2025 WORKSHOPS:

The Power of Art: Join educators from the Clyfford Still Museum to explore how art can help us grow as thinkers, communicators, leaders, and humans. Discover the Museum's new exhibition curated by Native youth, examine artwork up close, share your interpretations, and create your own art to express your perspective.

Presenters:

- Emily Bullard, Assistant Director for School & Teacher Programs, Clyfford Still Museum
 - Quána Madison, Community Engagement Specialist, Clyfford Still Museum
 - Josette (Josie) Doyle, 11th grader at Boulder High School

Together We Lead - Discovering Your Leadership Superpowers: Join this interactive workshop to explore your unique leadership style and discover how to use your strengths to create meaningful change. Through this session, students will gain insights into their interests, passions, and priorities, and learn how to move their goals forward with a strong sense of self and purpose.

Facilitators:

- Hayley Reynolds, Program Manager for ECLIPSE at the Climate Democracy Initiative
 - Riley Ruff, Volunteer Coordinator and Alumni from Colorado Young Leaders

How to be an Effective Climate Advocate: DPS to devote $8 million to provide 9 schools with eco-groovy heating and cooling. Then we convinced them to keep sustainability as a core Ends Policy (it is one of five). In this interactive session, we'll share what we did and invite you to make your voice heard.

Facilitators:

- Caden O'Kellylee, 8th grader at Morey Middle
- Halle Jackson, 8th grader at GALS
- Heather Jackson, Parent and Mentor

Voices for Change - Youth Lobbying for a Sustainable Future: Youth activists from the Good Trouble Climate Network and 350 Colorado's Youth Action Committee will lead a workshop on youth advocacy in the Colorado legislature. Students will learn how to give testimony and lobby their legislature, with interactive practice included!

Facilitators:

- Aisha O'Neil and Val Olivares, Good Trouble Climate Network
- Layne Ballenger and Elisa Williams, 350Colorado Youth Action Committee Members

How To Inspire Climate Action at Your School: We will lead hands-on, fun activities to demonstrate the power of working together to solve environmental problems in our local communities. Students will leave the workshop with new tools to create change and a clear action plan.

Facilitators:

- Kelly Moses and Jordan Allen, DPS Sustainability
- Student Leaders: Daniella Starks, Naomi Salmeron-Villanueva, and Lucy Means

Fracking and Our Most Vulnerable Communities: In this workshop, students will learn about fracking and how it disproportionately impacts youth, communities of color, low-income communities, and Indigenous peoples. We will discuss what hydraulic fracturing is and why it has devastating consequences on our health, safety, quality of life, and the future of our climate. Students will explore Colorado's most fracked communities and discuss ways to protect and empower them.

Facilitators:

- Sandra Duggan, Colorado Rising for Communities
- Millie Hopper, DPS Students for Climate Action President and Colorado Rising for Communities YAC Member

Together We Lead - Playing With Food! We will explore creative uses for and repurposing of food scraps. Participants will engage in fun activities, including making and dyeing play-doh, which they will get to make and take home.

Facilitators:

- South High School Herbalism Club
